Handwritten text in a historical script, likely a form of Old Persian or Avestan, written on a parchment-like surface. The text is organized into several horizontal lines, with some lines beginning by a large, stylized initial character. The script is dense and characteristic of ancient cuneiform-based writing systems. The parchment shows signs of age, including some staining and wear at the edges.

Handwritten musical notation on a single staff, featuring a series of rhythmic notes and rests. The notation is written in a dark ink on aged, slightly discolored paper. The notes are connected by horizontal lines, and there are several vertical stems. The overall style is characteristic of early printed music notation.

Handwritten musical notation on a single staff, continuing the piece from the previous page. The notation is consistent with the first page, showing a series of rhythmic notes and rests. The paper is aged and shows some wear and tear, particularly along the edges.
